CAHSEE NEWS

“For the Class of 2009, approximately 45,015 students have not yet met the (CAHSEE) requirement. Although state funding intended for intensive remediation for these students was included in the list of categorical programs that can be used for any general educational purpose, (State Superintendent of Public Instruction) Jack O’Connell has urged schools to continue to focus additional instructional services on these students to help them master the skills measured on the CAHSEE and meet the graduation requirement.”
